

FOR THE EXCLUSIVE USE OF PATRICK.DENNEY@EDS-AMERICA.COM

From the Birmingham Business Journal:

<https://www.bizjournals.com/birmingham/news/2019/02/26/bham-bakery-reopening-in-prominent-hoover.html>

Bham bakery reopening in prominent Hoover development

Feb 26, 2019, 8:22am CST Updated: Feb 27, 2019, 9:43am CST

See Correction/Clarification at end of article

A Birmingham bakery is hosting a grand opening event at its new location in Hoover.

Komeh O. Davis is reopening CakEffect at 1021 Brock's Gap Parkway, Suite 109 in The Village at Brock's Gap on March 9.

The bakery, previously located on 27th Terrace South, specializes in sculpted two-dimensional and three-dimensional cakes that are made to order for events and occasions.

An African American business owner and pâtissière, Davis is a former contestant on the Food Network's show Bakers vs. Fakers.

"Intertwining my love of art with my passion for baking has allowed me to venture out and create a seemingly new avenue of culinary art," Davis said in a release. "It's been a life-shaping experience for the better, and I love sharing my creations with others."

Last year, Davis was among four other participants in the Entrepreneurial Success Series small business mentoring program of Renasant Bank's Renasant Roots community development and outreach program.

The list of CakEffect's prominent patrons includes Stephen A. Smith of ESPN, Marcel Dareus of the NFL and the University of Alabama Crimson Tide football team, Pat Lewis of the Crystals, and Sir Charles Jones.

The Village at Brock's Gap includes Organic Harvest Market and Café, The Pointe Dance Arts, The Whole Scoop Ice Cream, Tre Luna Restaurant, Polished Nails & Spa, Keller Williams Realty, Burn Boot Camp, EW Motion Therapy, Santos Coffee and Trak Shak.

Correction/Clarification

The article was corrected with an updated list of tenants at The Village at Brock's Gap.

Hanno van der Bijl
Digital Producer
Birmingham Business Journal

GCHILDERS

A law student turned pâtissière is reopening her bakery in The Village at Brock's Gap.